

Martyn Clark

Martyn is director of Gadfly, a leadership communication and change coaching practise. His coaching and facilitation is all about creating fertile environments for change through clear, engaging communication. He works on individual, team and organisational level, and specialises in developing large-scale influence.

He draws from his own personal creativity as a singer and photographer to stimulate change around him, and to enable others to lead change more effectively.

Martyn has lived and worked in six countries, and loves working with high impact teams in multicultural settings. He has worked with hundreds of executives and senior managers in a multinationals, as well as with smaller firms. His clients include RBS Group, Standard Life, BAE Systems, the BBC, Johnson & Johnson, BP.
